Welcome to the August edition of our monthly newsletter. We hope you are all having a wonderful summer break so far and enjoying some quality time with your loved ones. The staff at Temple School is eagerly waiting for the new academic session to begin, and we cannot wait to welcome all our students back.

As we get ready for the new academic session, we would like to update you all on some important information and events scheduled for the upcoming months.

Firstly, we would like to extend a warm welcome to all our new families joining the Temple School community this year. Our staff is already working hard to ensure a smooth transition for all new students and we cannot wait to meet you all in person.

We are proud of our school's academic excellence, as well as the vibrant creative and athletic programs that we offer. Our dedicated and passionate teachers and staff are eager to work with your children, and we are confident that they will thrive in our welcoming and supportive environment.

Furthermore, we would like to remind students and parents that the first day of school is on September 4th, 2023. Students are expected to arrive at school on time and in complete uniform. "Growing Together: PARENTING STRATEGIES FOR TODDLERS"

1. Establish daily routines:

Structure your toddler's day with predictable routines for mealtimes, nap times, and sleep schedules. This helps them feel secure and content.

2. Encourage play and exploration:

Offer a safe and stimulating environment for your toddler to explore, learn, and develop new skills. Engage in age-appropriate activities that enhance their growth and encourage their curiosity.

3. Teach positive discipline:

Set clear and consistent limits while using positive discipline techniques. Focus on redirecting undesirable behaviours and rewarding positive ones.

4. Encourage language development:

Engage in conversation, read books together, and encourage your toddler to explore language through simple words, songs, and stories.

5. Promote independence:

Gradually encourage your toddler to perform tasks independently, like dressing, feeding themselves, and tidying up their toys. This fosters their self-confidence and self-help skills.

6. Provide a safe and nurturing environment:
Ensure your home is childproofed, providing a safe and secure space for your toddler to explore and play.

7. Practice patience:

Stay patient and understanding, recognising that toddlers are still in the early stages of development. They may exhibit tantrums and struggle with their emotions, so responding with empathy is essential.

"Cracking the Teenage Code:

PARENTING STRATEGIES FOR NAVIGATING ADOLESCENCE"

1. Maintain open lines of communication:

Engage in regular conversations with your teenager and create an environment where they feel comfortable sharing their thoughts and concerns with you.

2. Set clear boundaries:

It is essential to establish reasonable rules and expectations while respecting their increasing need for independence. Collaborate with them to establish boundaries that are fair and mutually agreed upon.

3. Encourage independence:

Support your teenager in taking on responsibilities and making decisions. Give them opportunities to learn from their mistakes and develop important life skills.

4. Be a good role model:

Your teenager is observing your behaviour closely. Model positive values, respect, and healthy social and emotional habits to help them develop into responsible adults.

5. Stay involved in their lives:

Even as your teenager seeks more independence, it is vital for you to maintain an active interest in their activities, friendships, and academic progress. Attend their school events and extracurricular activities whenever possible.

6. Respect their privacy:

Give your teenager space and privacy when needed, but ensure they understand the importance of online safety and the potential risks associated with unrestricted internet usage.

7. Foster a supportive relationship:

Encourage your teenager to share their dreams and aspirations with you. Show genuine interest in their hobbies, passions, and future goals to build a strong bond of trust.
